

UPDATE!

NEWS/ Joanna Krupa Sues Brandi Glanville Over Cheating Claims and Smelly Vagina Comments, Demands Trial by Jury

by REBECCA MACATEE

Fri., Jan. 23, 2015 11:01 AM PST

Like Share 37 Tweet 10 +1 0 Email

Getty Images

UPDATE: On Monday, Jan. 26, Glanville's rep told E! News in a statement: "The claims against Ms. Brandi Glanville are outright ridiculous and attention seeking. This is nothing more than a pro-longed publicity stunt."

Real Housewives drama is to be expected, but Joanna Krupa and Brandi Glanville's issues with one another hit below the belt—literally.

Krupa filed a lawsuit against the Real Housewives of Beverly Hills star Wednesday in Miami-Dade County citing "slander, slander per se and intentional infliction of emotional distress" over past claims Glanville has made about the model's alleged affair with Mohamed Hadid and her allegedly smelly vagina. Now, Krupa is "demand(ing) a trial by jury" and "intends to amend her complaint and seek punitive damages against Glanville."

After filing her suit against Glanville, the Real Housewives of Miami star told E! News exclusively, "Bullying hurts!"

PHOTOS: Real Housewives of Beverly Hills' OMG moments

In the suit, Krupa claims that Glanville "knowingly made the false and malicious statement" that she had "sexual relations" with Hadid while he was married to Yolanda Foster. Krupa also claims Glanville "knowingly made the false and malicious statement that Mr. Hadid told her that Mr. Krupa's 'p--sy smelled.'" These statements were made on Bravo's Watch What Happens Live in November 2013. During this appearance, Glanville claimed that Lisa Vanderpump witnessed Hadid's statements about Krupa's allegedly stinky private areas.

Per Krupa's suit, Hadid, Foster and Vanderpump "denied the truth of Glanville's statements and publicly confirmed Mr. Hadid never made the statements Glanville said were true and attributed to Mr. Hadid, and advised and/or confirmed that Glanville's defamatory statements were false."

PHOTOS: Brandi Glanville's best bikini moments

The lawsuit goes on to state that in December 2014, Glanville made additional "false and malicious statements" claiming "that Mrs. Krupa's vagina was malodorous" on WWHL's YouTube Channel "Bravo's Watch What happens Live Clubhouse." During this appearance, she asked host Andy Cohen, in relation to Krupa, if he "[got] food poisoning from bad sushi," noting the model was stunning, "but you can't help the odor situation." Krupa claims Glanville made these statements publicly knowing they were false.

On Jan. 6, Krupa's attorney Raymond Rafool wrote a letter to Glanville stating his client's intent to sue for libel, slander and defamation and asked for an apology and a retraction of these comments. Per the suit filed this week, Glanville has yet to apologize to Krupa or retract her statements.

—Reporting by Claudia Rosenbaum & Michelle Falls

(E! and Bravo are both members of the NBCUniversal family.)

(Originally published Jan. 23, 2015, at 11:01 AM PT)

PHOTOS: Ranking the Real Housewives fights

NEWS/ FAMILY AFFAIR?! Khloé takes on Kendall-Scott hookup rumors

NEWS/ TOP STORIES

Eddie Murphy Is Doing Something He Hasn't Done in 30 Years

Shakira & Gerard Piaué Welcome Another Baby Boy!

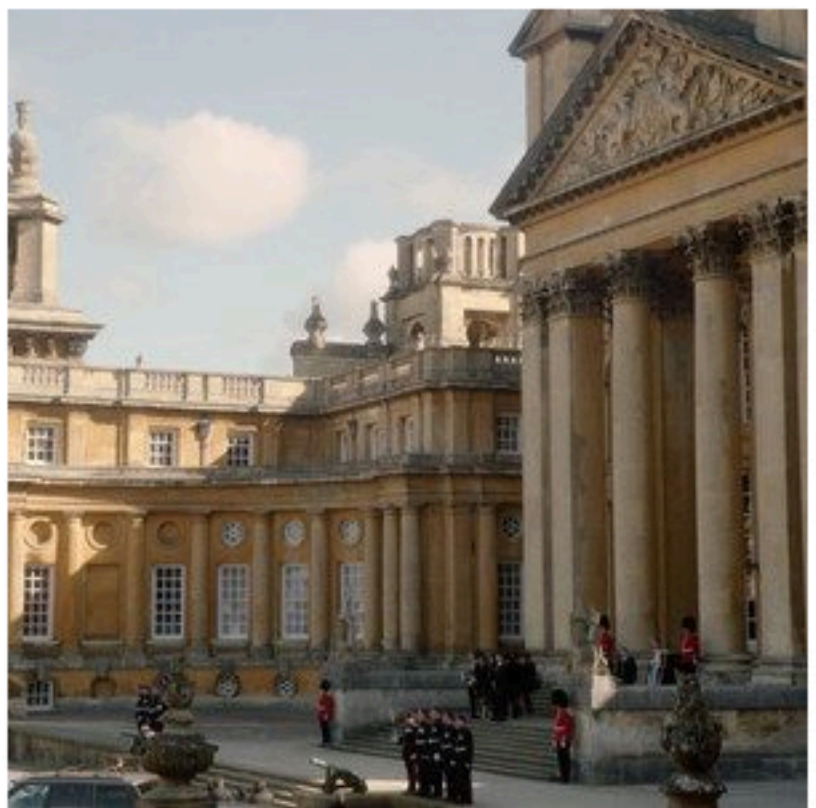

2015 ACM Awards: Complete List of Nominations

Super Bowl Stats: We're About to Eat 1.4 Billion Chicken Wings?!

Watch: Danny Trejo is Angry Marcia Brady in Snickers' Super Bowl Ad

Suge Knight Arrested on Suspicion of Murder for Fatal Hit-and-Run

MORE

NEWS/ PEEK BEHIND THE PALACE GATES

Get an exclusive palace tour and discover more royal secrets—Watch!

NEW PICS

